

Lifting the Veil

We've all followed the events after September 11, 2001, with great attention. Since then, this region has been thrust into the forefront of the world scene. Dictatorial governments have been removed from power and international aid organizations have flooded in to help meet the basic needs of the people. Years of war, oppression and infighting have taken a toll on this country, and yet it has strengthened the resolve of the people to press on. Improbable as it may seem, these people are some of the warmest and friendliest you will ever meet. As you can imagine, the needs in this country are enormous. These two factors alone make it easy to want to help.

Come join a team of others from around North America as we partner with churches, Christian organizations, and individuals in reaching out to these needy people. We'll build friendships while teaching them English and other skills.

Anyone can help, but flexibility and respect for authority are essential qualities, especially for trips to this country. If you'll be willing to give your time to make a lasting impact, we want you! Because of the sensitive nature of work in this country, prior participation with us on a short-term mission trip or other qualifying trip is preferred. Please contact the team leader for more information.
